Insure Penalty in Fifty-Five Cases for Law Violations.

Fifty-five motor boats used on the Connecticut river between Hartford and Saybrook have been found wanting in that their equipment does not come up to the requirements of the law which went into effect July 9 and the owners have been fined $100 in each instance by the collector of customs, acting upon the report of the inspecting officer, this figure being fixed for a violation of the law. The secretary of commerce and labor alone has the authority to remit fines or modify them down, and the appeals of those fined will be forwarded to that official with the recommendations of the Hartford collector's office.

HEAVY TRUCKS ON HIGHWAYS.

Town of Granby Gets an Injunction Preventing Their Use.

Drivers of automobiles and auto trucks will be interested in the outcome of a suit which the town of Granby has brought against Fred G. Button and T. G. Porter of Springfield. The case will come before the superior court, but the defendants are under an injunction issued by Judge S. Bullard of the city court.

The complaint says that the town of Granby, in the performance of its duty, has built and maintains within the limits of the town, for the general public, certain highways and bridges. It is alleged that during the summer of 1909, the defendant, Button, used upon the highways and bridges of the town with a motor truck of unusual and extraordinary size and weight, some eight feet wide and weighing some five tons, and loaded with about six tons of lumber, and used the highways and bridges, although he had been forbidden to do so.

The complaint further alleges that Button had used the Granby railroad station a steam traction engine weighing about nine tons which he intended to use on the highways for the purpose of hauling a weight of twelve tons.

It is alleged that the vehicles complained of will obstruct the highway to the general use of the public, and that they will so fill the traveled and worked path of the highways that other vehicles will be excluded from their use. It is also declared that because of the great size of the truck and the weight of the load, the bridges, when driven towards them, will be rendered unsafe.
